CONVOCAATION SPEAKER

Dr. Gieira Jones

Dr. Gieira S. Jones is an Associate Director of Outcomes Research for Precision Medicine in the Center for Observational and Real-world evidence at Merck. Dr. Jones is a cancer epidemiologist with over 10 years of experience leading population-based observational studies across multiple cancer types and 20 years of research experience overall.

A native of Philadelphia Pennsylvania, Dr. Jones started her research career as early as high school by attending internships at Fox Chase Cancer center learning about the molecular pathways associated with dysregulation of the cell cycle. She went on to continue her education at Elizabeth City State University where she obtained a B.S. in Biology and participated in several research studies under the mentorship of Drs. Margaret Young and Ronald Blackmon. During her tenure at ECSU, Dr. Jones was awarded a scholarship through the National Institutes of Health Undergraduate Scholarship program which included a research component to train at the NIH for each year of scholarship support. Dr. Jones went onto further her education by obtaining an MSc in Epidemiology from Temple University and a PhD. in Epidemiology from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Dr. Jones has extensive research experience in epidemiologic methods, biostatistics, study design, national survey data, health equity research and molecular biomarker studies. Dr. Jones is a passionate advocate and champion for health equity among underrepresented populations in cancer research and has worked on several epidemiologic projects focused on describing and eliminating the existing disparities. She has led biomarker studies in breast cancer populations that have identified racial differences in molecular pathways associated with poorer breast cancer outcomes. She also led an international pooled consortium that examined racial differences in HPV prevalence and the subsequent effect in head and neck cancer outcomes.

Prior to joining Merck, Dr. Jones led studies at the National Cancer Institute where she worked on a number of studies focused on examining racial differences in risk factors for liver disease and liver cancer risk. She coordinated a partnership between NCI and academic institutions on molecular profiling of gastric cancer tumors and instituted a vitamin D metabolomic biomarker study in an international consortium. Dr. Jones also served as a coordinator for the integration of microbiome studies in Kaiser Permanente Colorado Breast and Colon Health studies and examined the role of the microbiome in breast cancer risk.

Dr. Jones' most recent work involves understanding real-world patterns in genomic testing and biomarker distribution, with a focus on health equity and how social determinants of health can impact these patterns. Her research has resulted in numerous publications in leading biomedical journals and invited talks at national conferences. She also serves as an adjunct faculty member at Parker University where she teaches coursework in epidemiology and develops courses for the Master of Public Health curriculum.

In her spare time Dr. Jones participates as a mentor in the Program for Advancing the Health Sciences (PATHS), where she encourages African American youth to pursue careers in STEM fields. She is also a member of Black TIDES, an organization which promotes the inclusion of black professionals in tech, informatics, data science, epidemiology, and social science (TIDES) careers. She also enjoys spending time with her two daughters and taking family trips to water parks.

ALMA MATER

To thee, dear Alma Mater,
A tribute song we sing,
Of thy true worth to all of us,
O may we honor bring.

Chorus

Hail to thy lovely halls, ECSU
We'll hear when duty calls, ECSU Faithful and ever true, we'll be to you For in our hearts, we'll still love thee ECSU.

So now we'll join together,
For thee O State to work,
Let none of us be faint of heart
Nor any duty shirk.
